

North American Society of Adlerian Psychology

“One Hundred Years in the Shade” 1.5 CEs With Robert Powers, MA, Diplomate, NASAP

Course Overview: The year 2011 marks the 100th anniversary of the division of the Vienna Psychoanalytic Society into two separate groups made up of those following Adler and those following Freud. The events of 1910-1911 leading up to this split are in one sense well known, but in another sense they are examples of quite different interpretations, remembered in separate historical accounts. It is a commonplace to be told that Adler is supposed to have said to Freud, “Do you think I can be content to spend my life in your shadow?” In the received tradition of one of these accounts this statement is portrayed as a petulant complaint of the ‘disciple’ wanting to be independent of the ‘master.’ It is then seen as an omen of Adler’s having remained in a lesser position ever since. Is this true, or has the Adlerian movement prospered, not in a shadow, but in the shade? Powers offers insights of his own as well as a wonderful retelling of some of the history of Adlerian Psychology.

This course was presented as a 2.0-hour Ansbacher Lecture in May 2011 at the Annual Conference of NASAP in Victoria, B.C. About ½ hour is taken up with introductions and welcome to the conference so it is offered for 1.5 hour credit here.

Course Objectives: Participants will learn some key history in the development of Adlerian Psychology as well as some of the basic tenets of Individual Psychology.

Course Materials and Activities: You will receive the professionally recorded DVD from Kennedy Recordings along with a test that is to be taken and returned once you have completed listening to the DVDs. This is basically a listening/viewing course. You have one and a half hours of recordings to listen to/view and you can review the material as often as you need to complete your exam. The exam is a multiple choice style exam, which covers the material in the recordings.

Course Fee: The fee for this course is $40 ($30 for NASAP members), which includes all course materials, scoring of your test, and a certificate of completion.

Course Enrollment: To enroll in the course, send the appropriate Course Fee by check to the address below. You will be sent the materials and the test. Complete the course directions and mail your test to:
